Guardian Partnership Program

Dogs are a unique texture in the fabric of our lives. A well-trained dog has a better life and brings even more joy to the lives they touch. When breeding, it is critical to have a baseline level of joy and success. It is vital to both the guardian family and breeder that the future genetics of each dog in a breeding program have the utmost support in learning and development. Each puppy inherits a genetic framework from which learning begins. 30% of a puppy's identity is genetic and 70% is learned. A lack of consistency and trauma can impact the genes of future generations. The learning begins at birth, but a portion of that is inherited and can be influenced by the lifestyle and practices of the guardian home. A puppy's most crucial learning is during the first 16 weeks of their development, and often, pet parents aren't versed in the critical socialization and training needs of this time. That's where we step in to support and guide you!

It is with great privilege that At Your Service Dogs offers a variety of packages to meet the needs of guardian families. A well-trained dog gets to go on more fun adventures, and even more included in your world because they have dependable and consistent behavior patterns. Not only does training make for a better family companion, but it also allows for proper temperament evaluations when considering breeding and identifying learned vs. genetic habits.

Because of this, Oregon Bordoodles has protocol in place for all guardians and their dogs. Their carefully-selected breeding dogs are "free" to guardians, and in offering them at a $3,000 discount, they require training and coaching. Having a highly-qualified trainer with outstanding credentials to help navigate alongside you in the journey of raising a well-rounded dog is absolutely priceless. A dog is for life. A very long life!
